MANUFACTURER'S DECLARATION

STRONGFLEX Sp. z o.o.

We want to inform you, that there is no legal standard regarding replacements of suspension elements, because original (OEM) products also do not have approval (certification) and this is accepted by TUV.

Regardless of the car make and model, our components are at least of the same quality and function in the same way as standard (original) parts on the market.

Our research and tests have shown that the desired properties of our products remain much longer than that of the original elements, which confirms their quality and the possibility of using them in the motor vehicles for which they were designed.

Our bushings differ from the original metal-rubber ones only in material, appearance and color, but they fulfill the same function. The quality of our polyurethane components corresponds to those that are or were used for the first installation on a given vehicle. The use of manufacturer parts selected by the customer is allowed and is described in article 1400/2002 of the European Commission Regulation (EC).

Yours sincerely

Chief Technology Officer
